

RELATIONSHIP LOVE

Fruitfulness...Be salt and light

John Pringle

If a wo/man is not in fruitful relationship with the source of love, do not expect her/him to be able to dispense it.

The principle needs of human beings are:

1. Food, Clothing, Shelter (flesh)
2. Faith, Hope, Charity (spirit)

The principle rules for fruitful living are:

1. Have no other God before me
2. Love thy neighbor as thyself

Fruitful concerns for life are:

1. Flesh has self-will, passionate unto its own desire
2. Disobedience leads to broken relationship with love's source
3. All sin leads to death
4. Wisdom and humility embrace good judgment
5. A living relationship with the source of love enriches life

Know that flesh naturally seeks its own, and without Christ's introduction, will not seek him out until that one's passion fails them.

Many are lucky or wise enough to build up their storehouse before the time of need gets desperate, making their passion strong, disallowing their heart to see the need of Christ plan put into action. This is the weakness of flesh enriched, making man believe himself to be successful while his soul perishes. What profit is that?

Personal vendettas and glory is placed upon strength of passion, and a poor man's wisdom is hardly noticed. Self-esteem is often manipulated in tooling one's potential.

We are at times given a thorn to seek out answers towards that, in which we are gifted. We are to be salt and light in this world, letting men know of the dangers for placing passion in God's position. Instead make (neighborly) love a priority.

Playboys/girls typically seek strength towards their personal passion (which is not always sexual related). Insecurity and an incomplete relationship with the source of love, makes it possible for "friends" to utilize their influence for or against your peace of mind. Love will forge ahead, selfishness will stagnate you.

Do not misconstrue the placement of a thorn; which may allow a strong heart to reach short, that the fullness of time may catch up to its purpose (be patient). Some are stronger than their burden and the thorn keeps them on track, timely (not due to sin).

In a clique, the whole may stagnate the group (insecurity), while as one grasped ahead, could inspire the whole to forge ahead (Iron sharpens iron).

A man that does not know how to walk in the gift purpose or has brokenness in that area cannot show his passion strength (in that area), voiding himself of opportunity. There is nothing wrong with possessing a passion, as long as it does not violate the two given commandments.

Men with no regard to fruitful love relationship, seek out potential towards their own passion, catching the fool who would sell her temple for a morsel of bread (love).

Every thorn has its place and its time to be in it. Be of good cheer, love is the water in the ocean, salt comes from the internal super hot core of the earth, dispensed into the sea, flowing with life and vessels of such.

