

RELATIONSHIP LOVE

Tend to your own hedge of protection...

John Pringle

In an attempt to simplify salvation and the path set before men, I sat in prayer for an answer. The answer given to me was quite conceivable and I hope it edifies you too.

God speaking through his son Jesus says that there is none good but God. His word mentions that Lucifer, who was once the angel of light, has been cast out of heaven into the earth for a season. He (Satan), the same being a liar and the father (master) of lies. The word of God mentions that there were ten commandments chosen men ought to live by, Jesus came on the scene and simplified the same encompassing it into two simple commandments. This settles the instruction unto obedience whereby chosen men ought to live by, being disobedient to it, allowing sin to enter in.

Now obedience is the pathway to invite Christ into relationship, one with an individual even as disobedience is the pathway to invite Satan into one's vessel. Neither God nor Satan is as interested in men's sins but men's neighbors who measure them as unfruitful by personal judgment.

It is not far fetched to understand that each born child has a God given hedge round about them, which the child's parents have the authority to build up or tear down (for a season). When the child comes of age, it is then their personal responsibility to govern this hedge, tending unto it by obedience or disobedience. This conception is birthed out of the conversation between Jesus and Satan concerning our brother in the faith, JOB.

Culture has a great influence over this choice mechanism, as each child has a God imputed power to choose life or death through obedience or disobedience. The same becoming a tool of invitation unto relationship through temple possession, by one or the other master. How you tend to your garden hedge of protection is totally up to you, through whom you allow influence over you.

Being then that a child/adult has tended unto their hedge of protection, yet has not been possessed by God or Satan, through neither obedience nor disobedience, but self righteous; is simply considered religious without relationship with God or Satan. Such seem to have it well with them, but have their personal culture set as an idol before the living God, whom has instructed us to live neighborly, one to another, in spiritual family.

Now, s/he who is possessed of God or Satan will manifest the fruits of their master. As well, they who eat of their fruit will be considered covered under the wings of that master.
